SIPA LIQUIDATION
(Substantively Consolidated)

In re:

BERNARD L. MADOFF,

Debtor.

IRVING H. PICARD, Trustee for the Liquidation of Bernard L. Madoff Investment Securities LLC

Plaintiff,

v.

ESTATE OF JAMES M. GOODMAN; and AUDREY GOODMAN, individually, and in her capacity as Personal Representative of the Estate of James M. Goodman,

Defendants.

Adv. Pro No. 10-05079 (SMB)

MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF DEFENDANTS' MOTION TO WITHDRAW THE REFERENCE

The Estate of James M. Goodman (the “Estate”), and Audrey M. Goodman, individually and in her capacity as Personal Representative of the Estate of James M. Goodman (“Defendants”) respectfully submit this memorandum of law in support of their motion to withdraw the reference pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157(d) and Rule 5011 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure.

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

Defendants were former customers of Bernard L. Madoff who had no knowledge of his fraudulent conduct. Irving H. Picard, the Trustee for Bernard L. Madoff Investment Securities, LLC (the “LLC”) sued the Goodmans, alleging that they had received voidable transfers from the LLC in the last two years of its operation, that is, from December 11, 2006 to December 11, 2008. The case is trial ready and Defendants bring this motion to withdraw the reference because the Trustee’s claims are actions at law, of which Defendants have a constitutional right to a jury trial. The Bankruptcy Court cannot conduct such a jury trial or enter a final judgment on the Trustee’s claims. Only the District Court can. Therefore, Defendants entitled to an order withdrawing the reference so that the case can be tried by jury in the District Court.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

On December 2, 2010, the Trustee filed his Complaint against the Goodmans to recover alleged withdrawals allegedly paid to them by the LLC. The Trustee has conceded that the Goodmans were innocent victims of Madoff’s fraud. The Trustee’s theory is that the Goodmans withdrew from their account with Madoff more money than invested, giving them no credit for any appreciation in the account. (Adv. Pro. No. 10-05079, ECF No. 1, id., Ex. B). While the Trustee originally sued to recover withdrawals that the Goodmans took out of their account in the six-year period prior to Madoff’s confession, id., his claims have been limited to withdrawals in the last two years pursuant to 11 U.S.C. Section 546(e). See Picard v. Ida Fishman Revocable

Trust (In re BLMIS), 773 F.3d 411, 423 (2d Cir. 2014), cert. denied 135 S. Ct. 2859 (June 22, 2015).

Goodman died during the pendency of the action, and his Estate and Audrey Goodman as its personal representative were substituted into the action. (Adv. Pro. No. 10-05079, ECF No. 17). The Complaint and Answer are annexed to the Chaitman Declaration, executed on February 22, 2021, as Exhibits A and B respectively.

ARGUMENT

I. Withdrawal is Mandated Because Defendants Have a Constitutional Right to a Jury Trial and the Bankruptcy Court Lacks Jurisdiction to Conduct a Jury Trial or to Enter a Final Judgment in this Case

The Seventh Amendment to the United States Constitution provides: “in Suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved” U.S. Const., amend. VII. Fraudulent transfer actions are actions at law as to which a defendant is entitled to a jury trial under the Seventh Amendment. See, e.g., Granfinanciera, S.A. v. Nordberg, 492 U.S. 33 (1989).

The Supreme Court has repeatedly held that avoidance actions are “quintessentially suits at common law that more nearly resemble state law contract claims brought by a bankrupt corporation to augment the bankruptcy estate than they do creditors’ hierarchically ordered claims to a pro rata share of the bankruptcy res.” Stern v. Marshall, 564 U.S. 462, 492 (2011) (quoting Granfinanciera, 492 U.S. at 56). Thus, it is settled that, under Article III, “the Bankruptcy Court may not . . . enter final judgment on avoidance claims” absent exceptions inapplicable here. See Sec. Inv’r Prot. Corp. v. Bernard L. Madoff Inv. Sec. LLC, 490 B.R. 46, 49 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) (Rakoff, J.); Dev. Specialists, Inc. v. Akin Gump Strauss Hauer & Feld LLP, 462 B.R. 457, 469 (S.D.N.Y. 2011) (withdrawing the reference based on finding that “DSI’s fraudulent conveyance counterclaim against Dechert is precisely the kind of claim found to involve only private rights in Granfinanciera"); In re Coudert Bros. LLP, 2011 WL 5593147, at *8 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 23, 2011) (vacating final order of bankruptcy court entered prior to Stern with respect to fraudulent conveyance claim because "a claim of fraudulent conveyance implicates private rather than public rights").

This is similarly true with respect to those claims that the Trustee now brings under the Securities Investor Protection Act ("SIPA"). See Sec. Inv'r Prot. Corp. v. Bernard L. Madoff Inv. Sec. LLC, 490 B.R. at 49 ("Resolution of an avoidance action brought under SIPA would . . . require an exercise of the judicial power reserved for Article III courts"). Bankruptcy courts may conduct a jury trial only if (1) they are specially designated to do so by a district court and (2) both parties consent. See 28 U.S.C. § 157(e). Here, the Bankruptcy Court is not designated to do so and Defendants have not consented to a jury trial conducted by the Bankruptcy Court. Accordingly, the Bankruptcy Court cannot conduct a jury trial in this case.

Although we believe the District Court's decisions in Picard v. Saren-Lawrence, 17-CV-5157 (GBD), 2018 WL 2383141 (S.D.N.Y. May 15, 2018) reconsideration denied, 2018 WL 4659476 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 11, 2018), are incorrect, they are readily distinguishable. See also Picard v. BAM, LLC et al, 597 B.R. 466 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2019). There, the court declined to withdraw the reference on the theory that the defendants had consented to the jurisdiction of the Bankruptcy Court by filing a claim against the LLC under SIPA. Here, Defendants have not filed such a claim and therefore cannot be held to have consented to the jurisdiction of the Bankruptcy Court. Thus, the reference should be withdrawn.

A. The Bankruptcy Court Lacks the Power to Adjudicate this Case

In In re Orion Pictures Corp., 4 F.3d 1095, 1101 (2d Cir. 1993), the Second Circuit held that, in deciding whether to withdraw the reference “for cause” under 28 U.S.C. § 157(d), a court should consider: [1] whether the action is non-core, [2] “efficient use of judicial resources, [3] delay and costs to the parties, [4] uniformity of bankruptcy administration, [5] the prevention of forum shopping, and [6] other related factors.” The Orion factors compel withdrawal of the reference here.

Prior to Stern v. Marshall, 564 U.S. 462 (2011), the key question in determining whether to withdraw the reference “for cause” was whether the claim was “core” or “non-core.” Orion, 4 F.3d at 1101. But in Stern, the Supreme Court held that there are “core” claims that the Bankruptcy Court – although statutorily empowered to adjudicate – cannot constitutionally adjudicate under Article III. 564 U.S. at 482. Thus, following Stern, the core/non-core distinction has been interpreted to require determination of whether the Bankruptcy Court can finally adjudicate the claim. See, e.g., Sec. Inv’r Prot. Corp. v. Bernard L. Madoff Inv. Sec. LLC, 490 B.R. at 57 (“Following Stern, a number of courts applying this test have concluded that, because the classification of a claim as core or non-core no longer definitively determines whether the Bankruptcy Court may enter final judgment, courts should instead look “at whether, under Stern, the Bankruptcy Court has the final power to adjudicate [the claim at issue].”) (alteration in original) (quoting Dev. Specialists, Inc. v. Akin Gump Strauss Hauer & Feld LLP, 462 B.R. 457, 467 (S.D.N.Y. 2011)).

The reason for this is that “the core/non-core distinction was particularly relevant for efficiency considerations, because if the matter was core, a bankruptcy court could issue a final determination, whereas if the matter was non-core, it would be subject to de novo review by the district court.” See Dynegy Danskammer, L.L.C. v. Peabody COALTRADE Int’l Ltd., 905 F. Supp. 2d 526, 530 (S.D.N.Y. 2012) (citing Orion, 4 F.3d at 1101). Because this is “no longer dispositive of a bankruptcy court’s authority to enter a final determination, it is no longer ‘upon this issue that questions of efficiency and uniformity will turn.’” Id. (quoting Orion, 4 F.3d at 1101); DSI, 462 B.R. at 467 (if the bankruptcy court does not have the power to adjudicate claims, “there will be no advantage to allowing the matter to be heard in Bankruptcy Court, because this Court will eventually need to review the Article I Court’s determinations de novo . . .”).

Withdrawal of the reference is required here because the Bankruptcy Court lacks the Constitutional power to determine the action. “Because a bankruptcy court lacks jurisdiction to conduct a jury trial over a non-core claim except by consent of the parties . . . the threshold core/non-core evaluation is of critical importance if the commencement of trial is approaching in an adversary proceeding.” In re Enron Corp., 2004 WL 1197243, at *3 (S.D.N.Y. May 28, 2004); see DSI, 462 B.R. at 467 (where the Bankruptcy Court lacks final adjudicative authority, “the remaining Orion considerations will often tend to point toward withdrawal, for the same reasons they did when the question asked was whether or not the actions were core . . .”). Once a district court determines whether the bankruptcy court can adjudicate the claim, it should “weigh questions of efficient use of judicial resources, delay and costs to the parties, uniformity of bankruptcy administration, the prevention of forum shopping, and other related factors.” See Orion, 4 F.3d at 1101. These factors necessarily require withdrawal of the reference where there is a jury demand relating to claims that the Bankruptcy Court cannot finally adjudicate.

As the Second Circuit held in Orion, before the Supreme Court held that defendants were entitled to jury trials even in core matters, “the constitution prohibits bankruptcy courts from holding jury trials in non-core matters.” Orion, 4 F.3d at 1101; accord In re Cinematronics, Inc., 916 F.2d 1444, 1451 (9th Cir. 1990) (“[W]e find that grave Seventh Amendment problems would arise if a jury trial is conducted by the bankruptcy court, because section 157(c)(1) requires de novo review by the district court of noncore matters.”); In re Kaiser Steel Corp., 911 F.2d 380, 391 (10th Cir. 1990) (agreeing that bankruptcy court cannot hold jury trials in non-core proceedings); see also Wright & Miller, Federal Practice & Procedure, § 4106 (3d Ed.) (bankruptcy court may not conduct a jury trial in non-core matters).

Orion has been interpreted to mandate withdrawal of the reference in these circumstances. See DSI, 462 B.R. at 472 (“In addition, Defendant DLA Piper has demanded a jury trial of all issues so triable. Therefore, its action must be finally adjudicated here.”); In re The VWE Grp., Inc., 359 B.R. 441, 451 (S.D.N.Y. 2007) (“[T]he [district] court’s finding that the claim is non-core coupled with defendants’ jury demand is sufficient cause to withdraw the reference.”) (emphasis added); Dynegy Danskammer, L.L.C., 905 F. Supp.2d at 534 (“If a jury trial were required, this could counsel for withdrawal of the reference.”); accord In re Cinematronics, Inc., 916 F.2d at 1451 (reversing district court under abuse of discretion standard for refusing to withdraw the reference in a non-core proceeding where a jury demand was made); In re Larry’s Apartment, L.L.C., 210 B.R. 469, 472 (D. Ariz. 1997) (“[B]ecause bankruptcy courts cannot conduct jury trials on non-core matters, withdrawal is mandated if a litigant is entitled to jury trial on such matters.”).

After Stern, these same constitutional limitations apply to cases that the Bankruptcy Court cannot fully adjudicate under Article III, whether those claims are core or non-core.

B. All Orion Factors Support Withdrawal

Numerous courts have recognized that it is appropriate to withdraw the reference when a case is trial ready. See Kirschner v. Agolia, 476 B.R. 75, 83 (S.D.N.Y. 2012) (“[T]he Court may withdraw the reference if and when a trial is necessary.”); 1800Postcards, Inc. v. Morel, 153 F. Supp. 2d 359, 367 (S.D.N.Y. 2001) (“Both have requested a jury trial and neither has consented to final resolution of the non-core matter by the Bankruptcy Court. Withdrawal of the reference thus would solve the constitutional problems that would arise were the adversary action to proceed to trial.”); In re FMI Forwarding Co., Inc., 2004 WL 1348956, at *6 (S.D.N.Y. June 16, 2004) (“[T]he fact that the bankruptcy court would be better able than this Court to oversee discovery and other pretrial activities . . . is no longer a relevant consideration at this stage of the present adversary proceeding where . . . there is very little discovery left, and this case is on the eve of trial.”) (quotation marks omitted).

Withdrawal of the reference at this stage “will not result in forum-shopping because, due to defendants’ demand for a jury trial on this non-core claim, the parties have no choice but to try the case in this Court.” In re The VWE Grp., Inc., 359 B.R. at 451; see In re FMI Forwarding Co., Inc., 2004 WL 1348956, at *7 (“Moreover, withdrawing the reference does not promote forum-shopping because, since Marcus has a right to a jury trial on the claim, absent consent by Marcus to a trial in bankruptcy court, the parties have no choice but to try the case in this Court.”).

CONCLUSION

Defendants have demanded a jury trial that can only be conducted in the District Court.

The reference must be withdrawn.
